

The 7 Habits of Successful Readers

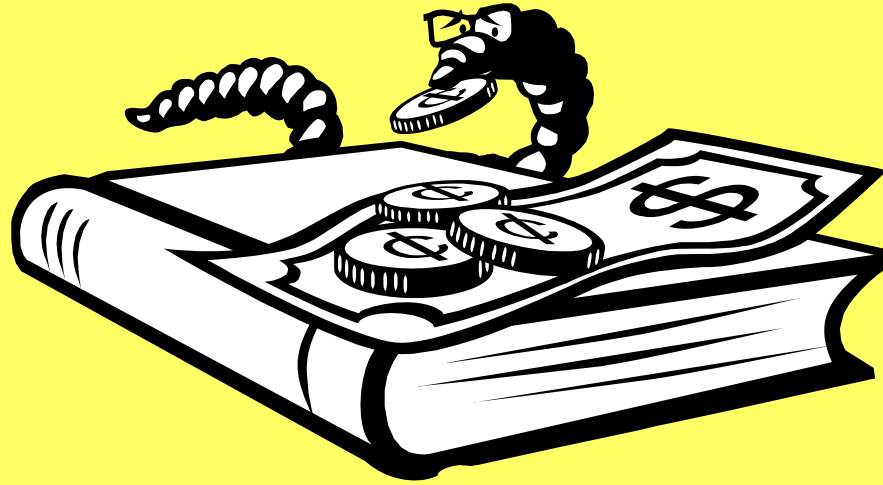

A Mini-Lesson with

Tips and Hints

Heide Spruck Wrigley

Successful readers get their minds ready before they read. They also think while they read and even after.

Successful readers connect what they already know about the world with what they are trying to learn.

Successful readers are curious and ask themselves questions while they read.

Successful readers make predictions as to what might happen next.

Successful readers read between the lines and draw inferences.

Successful readers play the role of word detectives.

Successful readers monitor their own understanding.