

How to Introduce Survey to Students

Introduce by putting pictures on projectors or in front of them the different expenses they have to meet in their household. They would need a “reality check” before they went into selecting careers.

Sell project to the students by using the El Paso Dominant Industry. Start with in demand occupations (categories) so they know what is actually here. Then refer over to the survey questions.

Posters that detail different careers – technology, medical, etc. People who work within those fields have to do Allows the students to identify what interests them.

Tell students they are never too old to start something new. That to make changes can sometimes be scary, but at the same time, if you have a dream then you have to go outside the comfort zone. Lead by example. Model the behavior.

Just start with the questions or “what do you want to be when you grow up?” or “what is it that you really love to do?”

What were you doing in your native country? How can you transfer the credentials that you have to something new?
